MARKET MAP & DIRECTORY ON BACK PAGE

This pen-and-ink drawing, by J. "Leon" Eggerling, in 1975, depicts "Frank," a produce vendor who worked at Manzo's Produce. Notice the view (from the second floor of Lowell's, Restaurant) still looks basically the same.

Leon was a tuck point mason who spent his off time in the Market, sketching what he saw. He started showing in the Market in 1981.

Now, he and his daughter Kelly are collecting copies of his works which were given away and

INN AT THE MARKET, AN OASIS OF COMFORT

Inn at the Market Allows Visitors and Locals a Fancy Respite Within the Market

BY JOHN LIVINGSTON

The Inn at the Market offers a unique experience for business and personal travelers. It's hard to pin a label on it. The term "luxury hotel" or "boutique hotel" doesn't do justice to the beautiful hotel.

"We are an urban oasis of serene hospitality and we provide exceptional service," said executive liaison Annie DeLucchi. "The oasis allows people to come in out of the hustle and bustle of the market and surrounding city, and yet still be close to the Market community."

One family best summed up the atmosphere at the Inn at the Market, according to

STILL A FEW FARMERS IN THE NORTH ARCADE

They say an Apple a Day: Try Baird Orchards' Just-Picked, Sweet Ones

BY MARIE ARY

Just in time for holiday feasts but available weekends only. Fifth-generation apple orchardist Jaime Baird, of Baird Orchards, Royal City, sells his family's five varieties of fresh apples at the day stall nearest City Fish.

"We specialize in apples, that's pretty much what we grow," said Jaime Baird. "We

SENIOR CENTER GETS GOOD DIRECTION

Senior Center Director: Dorothy Helping in the Emerald City

BY MEGAN LEE

Ever wonder why the Pike Place Market is such a diverse place?

Traditionally it is the mecca and meeting place for the city, where everyone—from the top to the bottom—comes to look, shop and socialize. It's their routine. The Market offers many necessary social services, one of which being the Senior Center.

It is a safe oasis where folk know they can come for interaction, career guidance, activities, help and a warm lunch. Lunch is very big part of the day explains executive director Dorothy Lengyel, who became the director this past
